Marunda Wins Second Term

Record turnout in second year of online voting gives Marunda an unprecedented second term.

SANDRA COOPER

Senior Staff Writer

UNO students set a new election record this year as they voted to re-elect Will Marunda for student president/regent with his running mate Adam Wright as vice president.

Many students and candidates anxiously waited outside the student government office Wednesday evening to hear the election results.

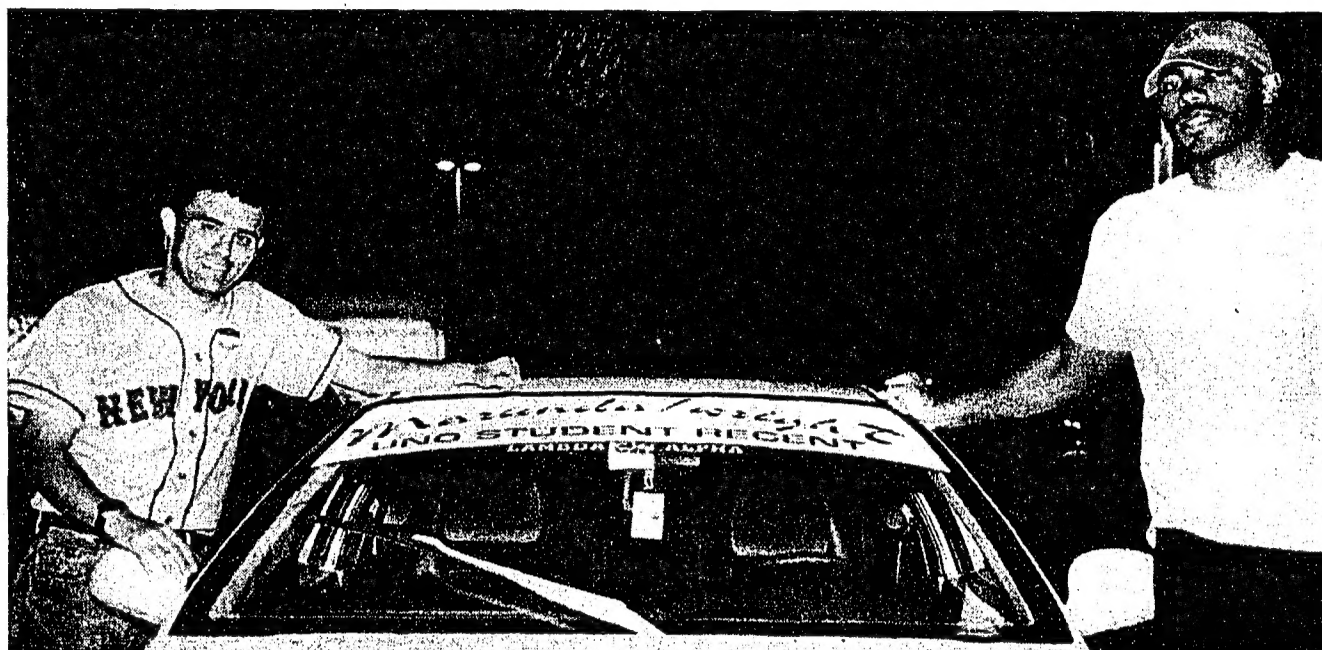

After a 45-minute wait, Student Court Chief Justice Katie McWilliams came out and said, "There will be no run off election. It's Will Marunda and Adam Wright. We experienced a record voter turnout with 1,056 voters this year."

Many supporters of the Marunda-Wright campaign could hardly contain themselves as they cheered loudly and jumped for joy.

"We are glad that it went our way and I'm excited about leading the university next year. And, I think it's time to celebrate," Marunda said.

A victory party for Marunda and Wright was held at the Old Chicago on 78th and Cass Street. Wright and a large crowd of UNO students had already gathered at the bar.

When Marunda arrived, he was greeted with loud cheers, hugs and kisses. The whole bar came to a stand still as one supporter stood on top of the bar to announce Marunda and Wright's victory.

Wright said that he is excited about becoming the next vice president and that it will be a challenge for him.

"I think that it will be a great opportunity for me to learn a little about student government. I'm looking forward towards working with Will Marunda and the student senate," Wright said.

Shay Riggs the current vice president said, "I am very pleased that Will Marunda got re-elected as Student President Regent. I

UNO TV Receives Andy Award

SANDRA COOPER

Senior Staff Writer

UNO TV was among the winners of the 2000 Andy Awards, given at a banquet in the Milo Bail Student Center Oct. 4. Two Lincoln Journal-Star staffers also received awards at the banquet.

The Andy Awards are given out every year to journalists from newspapers, television and broadcast radio for contributing to Nebraskans' awareness of international events, said A. Raheem Yaseer, the coordinator of International Exchange Programs in International Studies and the assistant director of the Center for Afghanistan Studies.

"The Andy Awards is named in honor of Harold Andersen, the former chairman and chief executive officer of the Omaha World-Herald," Yaseer said.

Lincoln Journal Star reporter Angela Heywood Bible and photographer Ted Kirk were honored for their series, "Far from home: Guatemala to the good life." This series explored the motivation for Guatemalans who travel to Nebraska to work in the packing plants.

UNO Television was honored for a great number of projects. The production crew made four trips to Israel and one to Morocco to film historical and religious sites.

These trips have led to two documentaries: "The Lost City of Bethsaida" and "The Dead Sea Scrolls." Current production includes the "Return to the Cave of Letters," which focuses on the history of the caves and the groundbreaking research being conducted there. The production crew has worked on other documentaries in Morocco as well.

In addition, several other recipients were honored with the Andersen-Gouttierre Awards. This award also recognizes individuals contributions of enhancing Nebraskans awareness of international events.

Charles, a professor of Geology/Geography, Wendi Chiarbos, the coordinator of the Bethsaida Excavations Project at UNO and George Bryan, an undergraduate student majoring in international studies here at UNO were all recognized.

Each recipient of the Andersen-Gouttierre awards received a $1,000 cash award.

Yaseer said the international studies department keeps track of the certain individuals activities during the year and then they nominate the best individuals to a selection committee that selects the best candidates for the awards.

Democrats Encourage Students to Political Action

JANET HARRIETT

Editor-in-Chief

Democratic candidates encouraged students Monday in the Fireside Lounge to become active in politics this election season.

A crowd of around 20 heard from Al Gore-Joe Lieberman campaign representative Miguel Gonzales, register of deeds candidate Diane Battiatto and Mike Fahey, prospective mayoral candidate for Omaha.

The speakers answered questions about their platforms and plans, but mostly encouraged the students to become active by voting and working with campaigns in areas such as phone banks.

Gonzales cited recent polls which said the presidential race could go to either Gore or George W. Bush in two of Nebraska's districts.

"The first and second districts are in play," Gonzalez said. He emphasized that Nebraska is one of only two states which allocate electoral college votes by congressional district rather than the winner-take-all system used all other states except Maine.

Gonzalez also highlighted parts of the democratic platform including the economic plan, tax breaks for students at four-year colleges and the environment.

Mike Fahey, who described himself as "all but the announced candidate for mayor," answered student questions about such topics as the state and future of north Omaha and why he wants to be mayor. He said he plans to officially announce his candidacy in December.

When asked about north Omaha, Fahey said, "North Omaha should not be any different than West Omaha."

He briefly described two plans to encourage development and improvements to Omaha neighborhoods: infill development and matching neighborhood grant funds. Infill development would encourage developers to use vacant lots inside the city rather than moving out to undeveloped property at the edges.

Matching neighborhood grant funds would create a "public-private partnership" match dollars put up by neighborhoods for improvements such as playgrounds or new signs.

While candidates milled around in the Fireside Lounge before their speeches, one student asked Fahey if he knew how to dance. In his speech, he promised the student to dance if he got elected.

Battiatto spoke briefly. She planned to visit the African American Organization and the Association of Latin American Students Wednesday.

The three politicians came at the request of the Student Democrats.

Weekend Phone Outage Expected

JANET HARRIETT

Editor-in-Chief

North Campus will lose all phone service, including blue light emergency phones, temporarily starting at 10 p.m. today while the telecommunications department transfers service to new switching equipment.

"Security and blue light phones will be the first to be brought back," said Forrest Stowe, manager of telecommunications services.

Stowe estimated a four hour disruption in Campus Security phone service, though service could be restored before then.

"Experience in the past says it will not be that long, but there are no guarantees," Stowe said.

All critical phone lines are expected to be working by 2 a.m. Saturday.

While Campus Security's phones are down, people can reach security by calling either 595-2673 or 658-8196.

The only disruption at University Village will be the two blue light phones.

with a total of 113 votes, which came to 10.70%.

"I think all four candidates were good," Leanna said. "All had the best interest at hand."

Jon Shrader came in fourth place with a total of 97 votes.

"The students wanted Will Marunda for another year and he got his people out to vote and he picked a great running mate, Adam Wright. I got squashed like a bug," Shrader said.

Mallory Prucha, the Chief Administrative Officer said, "Overall I'm excited about the voter turnout. It's phenomenal that a number of students turned out to support this election and I would like to congratulate all the candidates on a successful race and thank you for supporting the student body of UNOmaha."

Marunda said that he is so honored and excited about the possibility of working with Adam Wright this next year.

"This is a special night. I want to thank all the people that believed in us and were going to represent everyone next year," Marunda said.

GALO Offers Support, Community Involvement

LISA LINEBERGER

Staff Writer

Although it has been somewhat dormant during the last few years, the Gay and Lesbian Organization is once again coming to life.

April Christiansen, current president of the organization, defines it as "a social, political, and educational support network for gays, lesbians, bisexuals, and transgenders." She goes on to say that the group is not exclusive to the GLBT population. Any other individual is welcome to attend meetings and rallies. Friends of gays and lesbians are encouraged to attend, as are heterosexual allies.

GALO, which is advised by Political Science professor Wally Bacon, is still in its start-up mode, so no set meeting time or place has yet been established. However, the organization is already participating in community events. Saturday, some members will attend the National Coming Out Day at the OPPD Atrium, and Wednesday, members participated in the National Coming Out Day panel at the Milo Bail Student Center.

GALO is also an advocate of the Gay, Lesbian, and Straight Education Network, which helps students learn to tolerate and accept diversity. Not everything the group participates in is political, however; Christiansen says that social activities are being planned for the group, as well.

At the moment, one of the primary goals of the Gay and Lesbian Organization is to help prevent the Defense of Marriage Amendment from passing. The Defense of Marriage Amendment would amend the state constitution, which already prohibits gay marriage. It is worded in such a way that it prohibits not only gay marriage, but also any protection for same-sex couples in committed relationships. For instance, if one partner was seriously injured in an accident, her partner would be unable to make medical decisions on her behalf. Gays in committed relationships could even be denied the chance to visit their partners in the hospital. According to Christiansen, the wording of the amendment could be understood to include same-sex business partnerships.

Halloween Is Soon Approaching

I will also never forget the sugar-induced coma that started somewhere around that time and ended sometime before Easter. In my house, we celebrated the holidays with candy, and lots of it.

Halloween is the perfect time for this. The weather is turning cool, the leaves are falling and the sun is going down earlier. This type of scene is common all over the country at this time of the year. It reminds us that we are mortal and that there are things out in this world that we don't know about or are unaware of. The holiday is not referred to All Hallows Eve for nothing!

Taking things from this perspective, it seems like most people WANT to be scared. It seems like every month there is some horror movie out for people to scare themselves silly with. Bethsaida Exhibit in New York

LAURA SANCHEZ

Staff Writer

Artifacts discovered at the ancient city of Bethsaida in Israel are currently displayed at the Jewish Museum in New York as part of the "Drink and Rejoice: Beer and Wine in the Ancient World" exhibit. The display will be at the museum for six months.

"[The artifacts] are two pruning hooks, metal objects used in grape-harvesting, found at Bethsaida in 1994 by one of our volunteer excavators," Wendi Chiarbos, coordinator of the Bethsaida Excavations consortium, said. "UNO has been supervising the consortium of 16 schools around the world since 1990."

The Consortium is the governing body of the Bethsaida project.

"All decisions about the site's activities are shared among various directors and affiliated researchers," Chiarbos said. "Each of the directors also recruits volunteers from his or her institution and community, and brings them to Bethsaida to excavate each summer."

Each school in the consortium has a director of excavations. Professor Rami Arav is the director for UNO. Besides teaching, he also excavates during the winter term and summer seasons.

The Consortium of the Bethsaida Excavations Project has local, regional and national members including UNO, Hastings College, Truman State University in Missouri, Western Missouri State College, Alberta College in Idaho and Drew University in New Jersey.

There are also international members of the Consortium including the University of Munich in Germany, Jerusalem Center for Biblical Studies in Israel and the University of Lodz in Poland.

As a coordinator of the consortium, Wendi Chiarbos' primary job is to field inquiries, process applications and payments and organize the travel schedule of volunteer excavators.

"I also plan our annual Biblical Archaeology conference, I coordinate the summer activities in Israel, lectures we host throughout the year, exhibitions of antiques and public relations," she said.

The Consortium is planning to have another Bethsaida exhibit in Omaha in August 2002 with 100 different artifacts.

"The exhibit will be based upon an idea called 'Life at the Sea of Galilee in Biblical Times,' and will include coins, restored pottery, vessels, figurines and metal objects," Chiarbos said.

Before though, the exhibit will leave Israel in January 2002 and spend 4 months in different European venues — Germany, Switzerland and Austria.

"UNO students are encouraged to participate in the dig," she said. "In the year 2000 we had over 300 volunteer excavators on-site from all over the world. Approximately 20 people the Omaha area participated this year, many of them UNO students."

Jennifer Schley, a member of GALO, said, "It's totally unnecessary. I don't see anyone in the gay and lesbian community running down the street saying, 'I want to get married; I need to get married.' It's motivated by fear and hatred."

When deciding how to vote on DOMA, one might wonder if being homosexual is innate or a choice. Christiansen sums it up this way: "As 'chic' as the media wants to make gay and lesbianism, it is not accepted in conservative states like Nebraska, so I can't imagine why someone would pretend to be gay or lesbian, when it's so difficult."

On Oct. 31, GALO is going to hold a rally against DOMA from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., either outside the MBSC or in the building's Nebraska Room, depending on the weather. Christiansen described it as an opportunity for people to learn more about the amendment. This event will include speakers and informative fliers.

Christiansen is optimistic about GALO. She feels that this will probably be the start of a very active, productive year.

'Pal Joey' Excellent Entertainment

review by ENYI EMESIH

Staff Writer

"Pal Joey," set in the late '30s, is the story of a small time club entertainer with big dreams and a way with the ladies. Joey is a somewhat likable chap who always has a quick lie to back up his shady, questionable past. Based on the society and club scene of Chicago at the time, the play goes a long way to give the audience a feel for the way things were. It is a musical with the music of Rodgers and Hart, brought to life by an excellent band that doubled as the in-house band for the performance scenes as well as providing the score for other scenes of the play.

On the whole it is a great production. Kudos to Harland Meltzer on his direction here. He made good use of the stage, bringing out a somewhat verbal interpretation of the musical numbers, which is no small feat. There is a strong cast whose members went far to give their characters dimension. Notable standouts are Darrick Silkman (Ludlow Lowell), LeeAnn Anderson (Vera Simpson), Deborah Anne Radloff (a very strong as Gladys Bumps) and Sarah Brown (Linda English), who brings a genuine sensitivity to her character.

Michael Simpson, who played the lead character Joey Evans extremely well, but did not translate that well when it came to dancing or singing. His dancing was not as fluid as you would expect of a lead in a musical, and this does take away from the appeal of his character, the smooth debonair playboy. The singing and dancing, while being quite entertaining at times during group numbers, lacked that certain tight quality deserving of a production of this magnitude. The dancers did not always seem to be in sync, while the singing was off at times.

Technically, the show was flawless, with sets true to the time period. The sets so were so true to this that some audience members are seated at tables around the stage, giving that feeling that you are part of a Chicago 1930s club. The lighting capturing the mood of each scene, which is also very important when trying to invite the imagination of your audience into your story.

Again, it is a great musical, with good music. "Pal Joey" will be at the UNO Fine Arts Theater tonight and tomorrow night. Shows are at 8 both nights, and tickets are $10 for students, $12 for the general public. Check "Pal Joey" out, it's worth your time.

'Meet the Parents'

Murphy's Law, in its original and correct form: "If there are two or more ways to do something, and one of those ways can result in a catastrophe, then someone will do it." Keep that in mind when viewing the new comedy "Meet the Parents." Everything that can possibly go wrong does just that.

"Meet the Parents" is the best straight-up comedy this year. Granted, there hasn't been much competition. "Scary Movie" was funny, but most of the jokes were of the "fart-and-penis" variety. And you must admit "Me, Myself & Irene" was just painfully disappointing.

You know what those two movies could have used? Ben Stiller and Robert DeNiro. The makers of "Meet the Parents" must have realized that Stiller's incessantly neurotic persona would play perfectly against that of the hard-edged DeNiro, arguably the greatest actor of the last 30 years. They couldn't have been more right. Stiller's routine is the perfect complement to DeNiro's.

"Meet the Parents" has a rather simple plot. Chicago male nurse Greg Focker (Stiller) is planning to propose to his girlfriend of six months, Pam (Teri Polo). Before he gets the chance, news comes that Pam's younger sister will be getting married at the sisters' parents' house in New York. Greg and Pam make the trip to New York, with Greg seeing the getaway as the perfect opportunity to pop the question.

Of course, to paraphrase the aforementioned Murphy's Law, everything that can go wrong, will go wrong. From the moment he is introduced to Pam's parents, Jack and Dina Byrnes (DeNiro and Blythe Danner), Greg makes misstep after misstep. It's a veritable minefield of comedic mistakes that Greg has wandered into. Some of the mishaps include, but are not limited to, lactating felines, a highly combustible wedding shrine, a sewage-soaked lawn and a spray-painted cat.

Writers Jim Herzfeld and John Hamburg have fashioned a very funny script, and director Jay Roach (who also directed both "Austin Powers" movies) does no wrong, but it seems somewhat evident that the majority of comedy in "Meet the Parents" is reliant upon the work of both Stiller and DeNiro. Stiller plays pretty much the same character he played in the underrated "Flirting with

review by MATT BURKEY

Staff Writer

Women love him. Men want to be him. And I got to talk to him. I'm speaking of the one and only Tim Meadows. No, I wasn't dreaming. Honestly.

But you, like myself, are probably wondering where the Ladies' Man came from. Was he frozen in a time for 20 years? Was he the first genetic experiment gone wrong?

The Ladies' Man was a collaboration of the efforts of Andrew Steele, Dennis McNicholas and of course Tim Meadows. Together they came up with the character Leon Phelps, a smooth-talking love machine that could ensnare women with a few sweet lines. Meadows got the inspiration from high school where he knew several people who were indeed the Ladies' Man.

The famous voice was first created to entertain his wife, but Meadows also used it to call restaurants and place orders.

"I used that voice and a fake name, that way when I went to pick up the food there wouldn't be the crowd of people waiting for my autograph," Meadows said.

Once Meadows was cast on Saturday Night Live, the Ladies' Man that we all love, or hate (that's you ultra-feminists out there) was born. While on Saturday night live the Ladies' Man went through numerous female guest appearances. Meadows' favorite was Julianne Moore.

"She was just really fun and willing to get really into it. It made the skit 10 times better," Meadows said.

When the idea for a movie about the Ladies' Man came up, Steele, McNicholas and Meadows wrote separately and then came back together. They kept some things and pitched the others.

"They gave me a lot of rope to hang myself with," Meadows said about the movie.

Once the three had a script that they were happy about they then moved on to casting, which just like the writing, Meadows was heavily involved with.

"We wanted someone that could make Julie real, because Leon is so fake," Meadows said. I can't really say much more because that would give away the movie, which opens today.

So, after my 20-minute chat with Meadows, I was forced to go. But not before he had time to cheer up down female Gateway reporter Bobbi McCollum. That just proves that he is indeed the one and only Ladies' Man.

Haunted House Highlight: Mystery Manor

review by SAMANTHA HARVEY

News Editor

For the past 17 years, Mystery Manor has been giving people thrills and chills. The Manor is supposed to be haunted by William Hall, a wealthy businessman, who murdered his wife Greta. Avenging his sister's death, John Martin murdered William, but no one knows who killed John. His body was found on Halloween night at his sister's grave site, which is in the front yard of the house.

The sinister William Hall greets visitors in one of the first rooms of the Manor. As you walk unguided through the house, zombies, mad scientists, vampires and your everyday ghoulish monsters pop out from hidden areas.

The Manor provides illusion throughout the house of William, Greta and John. In addition, visitors will see a barbecue pit with a human head, Dr. Snyder's insane asylum and of course, the 65-foot Slide of Doom, which sends you plummeting down three stories. Last, but not least, is Area 51, which features the Black Hole.

Most haunted houses have one of those bridges that has the wall around that spins. However, no other haunted house has made me feel like the bridge was actually moving. I had to stop and hold on to the rail because I thought the bridge was turning and going to go upside down. It was my favorite part of Mystery Manor.

It is definitely worth the $8 admission fee. A portion of proceeds go to Prevent Blindness Nebraska, which does offer two-for-one discounted pre-sale tickets. For more information call 572-3520. Doors open daily at 7 p.m. and the Manor is located at 716 North 18th Street.

Steve Raybine "Balance Act" (SAR Music)

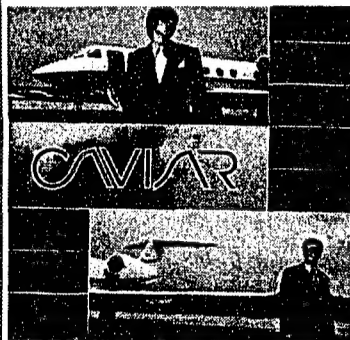

This album is done by UNO's former professor of jazz studies Steve Raybine. Doing what he knows best, playing the vibraphone, he puts out smooth instrumental music in every track. Raybine takes this simple instrument and creates smooth, complex and jazzy tunes. Most of the tracks on the album Raybine wrote himself, except the popular and classic "Stormy" by B. Blue and J. Cobb. The vibraphone is played with a background of music from a variety of instruments such as saxophones, trumpets, electric guitars, and of course drums. Genres of music in this album include a little funk, blues, and Latin music. If you are someone who enjoys gentle instrumental music, this will be more for your taste. As for the hard-core rockers, you'll probably want to pass this one up.

Barenaked Ladies "Maroon" (Reprise)

The Barenaked Ladies are back, and with an absolutely fabulous and hilarious album. Done in typical Barenaked style, this album includes simple, honest lyrics and catchy rhythmic music. Track 3, "Pinch Me," has already been getting nationwide attention and a lot of air time. Track number 6, "Conventioneers," is a slow song with a gentle hypnotic tune. And track 7, "Sell Sell Sell," a song about the movie-making business, has a refreshingly new and very unique "bull-fighting" march tune to it. Others songs like "Baby Seat" and "Tonight is the Night I Fell Asleep at the Wheel" are not only fun to hear, but the lyrics are fun to hear too. All in all, this CD is fabulous.

Caviar "Caviar" (Island)

It is said that a good first impression is everything and that is exactly what this Chicago-based band has done. The group's self-titled album is the first album and very impressive. In the album, the band shows the maturity of the band through the smart mix of rock and other genres. For a time in its past history, the band experimented with electronic music, and that is evident in many of the tracks. The popular single "Tangerine Speedo" is the band's trademark song and has been getting a lot of air time on 89.7 the River. This song includes periods of rock, interrupted with infectious island music. Every single song on this album is great—you won't have to skip any tracks on this one!

Disaster." He is at his neurotic best — surprising, seeing as how neurotic characters tend to become annoying rather quickly. For DeNiro, the third time is the charm, as his two most recent forays into comedy, "Analyze This" and "The Adventures of Rocky & Bullwinkle" were pretty forgettable. Perhaps it helps that instead of playing a criminal (where the audience is used to seeing him), DeNiro portrays (minor spoiler alert!) a former CIA agent. The rest of the cast fills its respective niches perfectly, including an underused Owen Wilson (as Pam's ex-fiance) and James Rebhorn (you'll recognize him when you see him).

However, the film is not without fault, even if it is forgivable. Given that "everything that can go wrong, will go wrong," Greg's mistakes become increasingly predictable. That doesn't mean that they are any less funny, just that most viewers will see the punchline long before it arrives. All is forgiven though, because I personally can't remember a scene in recent years more funny than Greg's confrontation with a flight attendant who makes murder seem understandable.

An Interview with

ENYI EMESIH
Staff Writer

In the realm of reggae music today, there are so many artists and even more legends. When we think of legends, names like Bob Marley, Peter Tosh and Dennis Williams come to mind. All three are deceased, but leave behind a legacy of music relevant to what we now consider reggae music. A mention of legends, however, is not complete without mentioning Burning Spear. Born Winston Rodney in 1948, Burning Spear has become known worldwide as one of the pioneers of conscious reggae the world over. We caught up with him in L.A. by phone recently and he had some interesting things to say.

Gateway: You were born in the parish of St. Anne in Jamaica, which is also the birthplace of Marcus Garvey and Bob Marley. Marcus Garvey is someone whose message you still carry today. Do you see this as some type of spiritual coincidence?

Burning Spear: I don't look at it in special way, it just happened.

Gateway: I spent time in Nigeria, where I witnessed the direct effect of your music on regular people down there. Have you ever witnessed this effect or when writing do you sit down hoping for a certain effect?

Burning Spear: Sometimes you do not know what is going to come about when you are going to write. You write from your everyday. First thing you do is getting a melody, then take your time to get lyrics, you never know when the vibe is going to come to you. Always picture yourself as a singer and create an atmosphere to accommodate these things when they come. When you really need them you can draw from them.

Gateway: I have always wondered about one of your songs, "Man in the Hill." Could you tell me the direct inspiration behind that?

Burning Spear: It's based on people on who occupy the hills and these hills could be anywhere in Africa, in Europe, any West Indian hill. It could end up just being a man in the hill. It is just related to us and what could take place in a hill.

Gateway: Have you done anything with Aswad?

Burning Spear: They were a backing band for Burning Spear when I first went to England.

Gateway: What is your opinion on the current state of reggae, knowing that today it leans heavily towards hip-hop?

Burning Spear: Reggae will always be reggae and over the years it has changed, developing different sections. Some of these sections are a little too much, I try to maintain the original section I have been doing since 1969, the roots section. It has become world music going into areas that it has never gone into before.

Gateway: What do you think of the "new consciousness," as it is called, with artists like Buju Banton, Tony Rebel and Capleton?

Burning Spear: There are artists from long ago who have been doing constructive things, while there are some artists who just came on the scene and can't make up their minds what they want to do. Sometimes you can't do all the sections.

Gateway: With the ever-changing times will you ever consider recording with a DJ?

Burning Spear: No, that is not possible.

Gateway: I did expect that to be your answer, especially after listening to "Calling Rastafari" (the latest album), which maintains the melodic style you have always recorded. Do you plan to record another album soon?

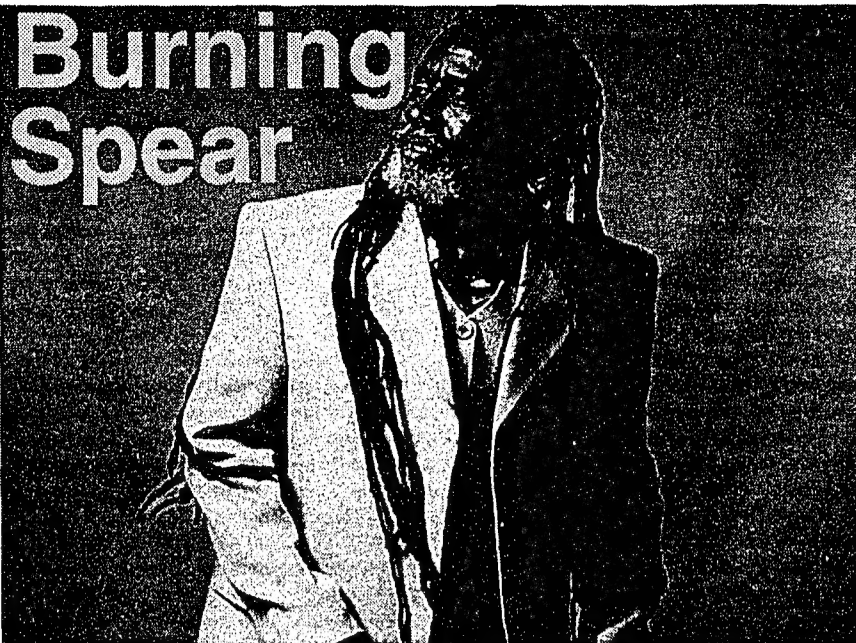

Burning Spear: I am thinking about going back to the studio in January to lay down a couple more tracks.

Gateway: You are based in Queens now? Do you ever go back to Jamaica?

Burning Spear: That's where I do my entire recording, I sometimes go back three, four times a year.

Gateway: Have you ever toured in Africa?

Burning Spear

Burning Spear: I had toured in West Africa, I have been to Nigeria, Zaire, Sierra Leone, Senegal, Burkina Faso, Ivory Coast a couple of places in West Africa. I will be in South Africa for the first time this December.

Gateway: What would you think if I were to say to you that it was your music and music of others portraying the same message as you that had an effect on apartheid in South Africa?

Burning Spear: Music is a strong force.

Catch Burning Spear Sunday night at the Royal Grove in Lincoln.

Mavs To Face Coyotes in S.D.

CORY CARLSON

Staff Writer

The No. 8 Mavericks, on the shoulders of the 10th-rated defense in Division II, will play the South Dakota Coyotes at 2 p.m. on Saturday in Vermillion.

Senior tailback Adam Wright tries to become only the seventh runner in school history to eclipse the 1,000 yard mark. He is 12 yards shy of the century mark, and just 68 yards short of his career high in 1999 (1,056 yards).

The 'Yotes' are not the same team the Mavs tattooed for 54 points and a school-record 509 rushing yards at Al Caniglia Field in 1999.

Offensively, SDU lost its leading rusher from a year ago, Jamal White. Defensively, the team is much better, allowing just 118 yards on the ground per game.

SDU is in the midst of a youth movement on offense, led by sophomore signal-caller Ryan Justice. He has completed just over 49 percent of his passes for 797 yards and four touchdowns in five games.

Justice likes to throw to a pair of young receivers: junior Dustin Sagedahl and freshman Charles Johnson.

Johnson leads the team in receptions with 16, including two touchdowns. Sagedahl has hauled in 12 passes from his tight end position, and has one score.

of which came on one run against Truman State.

"Dusty has given us a spark at running back, no doubt about it," SDU Head Coach John Austin said. "He is learning day by day and getting better."

Stamer and Co. will face a Mav defense ranked fourth in the nation, allowing just 48.8 yards per game on the ground.

"Every time we go on the field, I think we've got a great chance of stopping people in critical situations," Maverick Head Coach Pat Behrns said.

Another Stamer leads the improved SDU defense. Senior linebacker Josh Stamer (unrelated to Dusty) leads the 'Yotes' in tackles with 44, two sacks and six tackles for loss.

"Josh is a very talented athlete who has great explosiveness," Coach Austin said. "He is a big play maker on defense and one of our key contributors."

The Coyotes are coming off of a 37-0 shutout victory over St. Cloud State. The Mavs beat SCSU 36-0 on Sept. 30. The 'Yotes' lost to North Dakota State 45-20 on Sept. 23. The Mavs face NDSU next week in at Al Caniglia Field.

SDU leads the all-time series 23-16-1, but the Mavs are 6-4 in the Dakotadome, and have won the last four meetings.

"We have to get better on offense, and we have to be good in our special teams, because you have to keep the ball away from them," Behrns said. "And, you better have good field position."

Tai Zuckweiler moves through two Rockhurst defenders

JW Josh Williamson

Women's Soccer Team Lets Visiting Hawks Get Away

DAVID M JOHNSON

Sports Editor

The UNO women's soccer team hosted Rockhurst University Wednesday on what was a perfect day for a game.

The weather was perfect — 73 degrees, south breezes, sunshine.

UNO was perfect — 30 total shots to Rockhurst's three, 11 shots on goal to Rockhurst's two, 14 corner kicks to Rockhurst's one.

The final score, however, was anything but perfect ... Rockhurst 2-1 over the Mavericks.

The visiting Lady Hawks managed just two shots on goal, but both found the back of the net. Coleen Simpson scored four minutes into the game on a penalty kick. Sara Wood tallied on an unassisted goal just shy of the 60-minute mark.

UNO did not rebound until the 74th minute when substitute Tai Zuckweiler took a cross from Katie Hobbs in the box and slammed home the goal.

The loss ended a streak of four consecutive wins for the Mavs in which they had outscored their opponents 39-4.

UNO drops to 11-4. Rockhurst improves to 8-8.

Head Coach Don Klosterman and his team travel to Greeley, Colo. Sunday for a match against Northern Colorado. The 10-4 Bears are undefeated at home this season (3-0) and have won six straight games by a combined 45-1 score.

Volleyball Team Faces North Dakota State

MELISSA KUCIREK

Senior Staff Writer

For the fourth-straight match, the UNO volleyball team faces a top-15 Division II team. After wins over Northern Colorado and Augustana in its last two outings, UNO remains in the No. 3 spot.

UNO hosts No. 14 North Dakota State tonight at 7 p.m., then faces North Dakota in a 6 p.m. Saturday face-off at Sapp Fieldhouse.

Head Coach Zaundra Bina's Bison team totes sophomore setter Kathleen Hegg. The 5-7 McIntosh, Minn., native is averaging 8.55 assists per game, racking up 727 on the year. She's part of an inaugural 6-2 offense for the Bison's (two setters on the court who set from the back row position). Three hitters are available for each offensive execution.

"If we run out of substitutions," Bina said. "We run a 5-1 offense, which is not really a big deal, because that's what we've traditionally done."

Hegg is feeding the ball out to junior outside hitter Rachel Schmieg, a 5-10 Chaska, Minn., native who has 400 kills to date.

"Rachel is having an outstanding year. She's hitting for good percentage," Bina said. "She's one of the steadiest players I've coached in terms of intensity and emotions. She's also one of the hardest hitters in the league. Blasting through blocks is her forte."

Heather Evans has 323 kills. The junior from Warroad, Minn., stands 6-2 and plays both the middle and outside hitting positions.

In 1999, NDSU finished 33-4, 16-2 in North Central Conference action, eventually winning the NCC. This year the Bison are 16-7, 6-2 in NCC. In away games this year, Bina's squad is 4-1.

UNO leads the all-time series record with NDSU 34-28.

"Everyone assumes there is going to be a lot of intensity," Bina said. "UNO is a great in-system team. Offensively, you don't stop (Nikki) Mastny and (Tracy) Ankeny. You only hope to contain them, they present a lot of problems for your defense."

In Saturday's match-up, UNO faces the University of North Dakota Fighting Sioux. Head Coach Maria Bruggeman's squad finished 16-16, 5-13 in the NCC last year. This year, Bruggeman has to contend with a young squad.

The Fighting Sioux come to Omaha 12-11, 2-6 in NCC events. They are 3-3 in away games.

UND have three attackers with over 200 kills. Sophomore Kate Cahill leads the team in kills. The 6-0 middle-hitter has notched 258 kills this season. Joining her in the "over-200" club is Laura Birk. Birk, a 6-2 Wells, Minn., native, has 201 kills from the middle position. Senior middle attacker Kristal Guyda has 244 kills.

Sophomore Holly Welter is on hand for Fighting Sioux setting duties. Averaging 11.34 assists per game, the 5-5 setter has a combined total of 930 set assists to date. In addition, Welter leads the team in service aces with 30.

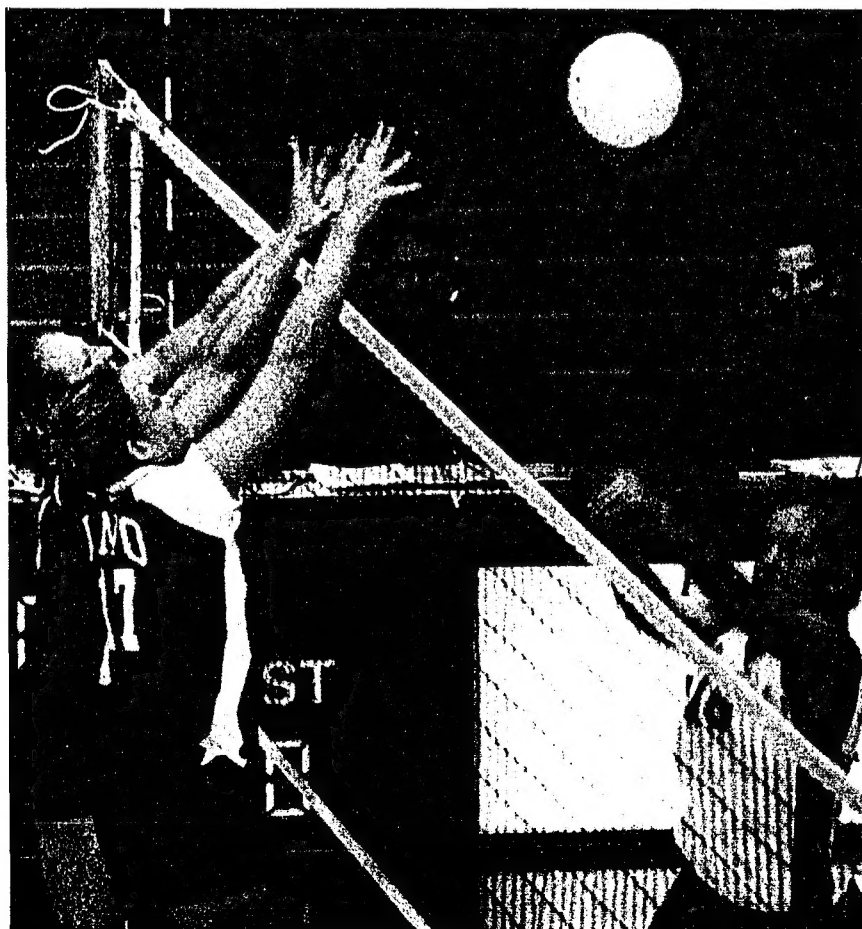

All-American outside hitter Tracy Ankeny continues to pace the Mavs in kills this season. The senior from Dixon, Nebr., has 316 kills (4.86/game). Junior All-American Nikki Mastny has 268 kills (4.12/game). Senior Krista Nlezwag and sophomore Jewelia Grennan are tied with 146 kills, while freshman Amy Fauss has 97 kills.

Ankeny also leads the Mavs in service aces, boasting 27. Freshman Heather Van Ackeren has posted 23 aces this season.

In the setting category, freshman Kylie Lebeda and senior Bethany Tygert continue to share duties. Lebeda has 548 assists to Tygert's 276.

Both matches are crucial for Mavs in their quest for a conference championship. Augustana remains at the top of the NCC, with the Mavs a half-game behind. NDSU is in third place.

Looking ahead, after the Fall break, UNO travels to Wayne State for a 7 p.m. confrontation.

Maverick Stampede Draws National Attention

BRIAN BRASHAW
Staff Writer

If there were a BCS of college hockey, this would be close to it. UNO hosts the Maverick Stampede this weekend at the Civic Auditorium. The tournament brings into Omaha three of the finest hockey clubs in the country.

Niagara, Boston College and Notre Dame all make the trip to Omaha, arriving by air Thursday. The tournament kicks off Friday at the Civic.

Niagara comes in this year after surprising some people and earning a NCAA tournament birth last year. The Purple Eagles screamed to a 30-8-4 record, first place in their conference: College Hockey America. The Eagles advanced in the first round of the NCAAs with a win over New Hampshire. They eventually bowed out to national champions North Dakota.

The Eagles are a young team, boasting 14 freshman. They are led in scoring by freshman Hannu Karu, who had a goal and an assist earlier this season against Lake Superior. Eagle goaltender Rob Bonk is also a freshman. Bonk had 31 saves in the over-time loss to Lake Superior.

Notre Dame comes to Omaha for the second time. The Irish are 0-1-1 at the Bullpen, as UNO beat and tied them in a Central Collegiate Hockey Association weekend match-up last season.

Notre Dame is currently ranked No. 20 in the nation by US College Hockey. The Irish also advanced to the CCHA Final Four in Detroit last year, finishing fifth in the regular season and earning the third seed in the CCHA Championships.

Notre Dame finished with a 16-18-8 overall mark, 11-10-7 in the CCHA.

Former-Lancer goalie Tony Zasowski returns in net for Notre Dame after an impressive rookie year. Zasowski stole the starting job, posting a 2.30 goals against average, as well as a .909 save percentage. In their opener, Notre Dame was handed a 7-3 loss by No. 11 Minnesota.

Boston College has never been to Omaha, but would look to be the favored team in the Stampede. The Eagles are No. 4 in the nation, and were the national champion runners-up to North Dakota last season. Boston College finished last year 29-12-1, third place in Hockey East.

Boston College has made three consecutive trips to the Frozen Four, but is still looking for its first national title since 1949. Only five players are lost from BC's runner-up squad, but the losses are significant. Gone are Mike Mattau and Jeff Farkas, both Hobey Baker finalist. Coupled with the departure of Blake Bellefueille, the Eagles have over 50 goals and 100 points of scoring they need to fill.

The Breakdown: Four playoff-caliber teams are coming to Omaha, three of which are nationally ranked, (Boston College #4, UNO #13, and Notre Dame #20). Two of the four made it to the NCAA Tournament and beyond, (Boston College in the national championship game, Niagara second round).

Boston College plays Notre Dame 5 p.m. Friday night. UNO opens against Niagara at 8 p.m.

The consolation game for the Stampede will be Saturday at 5 p.m., while the championship game will be Saturday at 8 p.m. All games are at the Civic Auditorium.

#25 Joe Pereira takes a shot on goal for the Mavs, who are going to see a lot of action during the Maverick Stampede this weekend

Morningside To Move To Division III Status

Senior Staff Writer

The Morningside College Board of Directors approved a decision to drop the Mustang athletic program from NCAA Division II status to NCAA Division III, according to Michele Linck, staff writer for the "Sioux City Journal." The move will be implemented at the end of the 2001-2002 season.

Morningside College is located in Sioux City, Iowa and has an enrollment of 1,200. It has been a part of the North Central Conference since 1921.

Morningside will omit up to 85 full scholarships, which are now utilized among 150 student athletes. Beginning next fall, no athletic awards will be presented; however all current scholarships will be honored.

The Mustangs will continue to compete in the NCC until the 2001-2002 season.

According to the school's president, John Reynders, the college has made the switch to further its academic goals, and to make more students available to the college athletic experience.

Coaching salaries and transportation costs will still be covered by Morningside. The school does plan to continue improvements scheduled for the Allee Gymnasium and other recreational facilities.

In a Wednesday morning telephone conversation, NCC Commissioner Michael Marcell said Morningside College hasn't officially dropped out of the conference.

"Morningside is still a full-fledged member of the conference," Marcell said.

PEANUT GALLERY

- Props again to UNO running back Adam Wright. For the fifth week in a row, Wright has been named Nebraska Division II Player of the Week. Wright's 151 yards rushing against Northern Colorado Saturday pushed his 2000 total to 988 yards, tops in Division II. It was Wright's fifth consecutive 150-yard rushing game.

- Pro beach volleyball superstar Canyon Ceman will be at the Sapp Fieldhouse for Saturday evening's UNO-North Dakota volleyball match. Ceman, the No. 3-ranked pro beach player, will sign autographs beginning at 5:30 p.m.

- Saturday night is also Girl Scout Night at the Sapp Fieldhouse. Eight $25 camper-ships will be given away to lucky scouts compliments of Arby's, Cox Communications, Omaha Softball Association and the South Omaha Optimists.

- Friday night's UNO-Niagara hockey game will be broadcast live on KFAB, 1110 AM with the pre-game show starting at 7:25 p.m.

- England soccer manager Kevin Keegan resigned in disgrace following his team's 1-0 loss to Germany last weekend. A poll of British soccer fans voted Sun newspaper's mascot, "Jack Ass" ahead of interim coach Howard Wilkinson as their choice to head the squad.

The Gateway, an award winning metropolitan university newspaper will soon be interviewing candidates for the position of

Editor-In-Chief for Spring 2001

- We are looking for a dependable, ambitious, creative person with strong writing and editing skills and the ability to get along well with others. Journalism and Quark classes, practical experience on a high school, college or community newspaper, and drive to succeed are highly recommended.
- You will be supervising a staff of student writers, artists and photographers and be responsible for and have complete control of the content of a publication that is read by the university's students, faculty and administrators twice a week.
- If you're excited about holding a most important and prestigious student job at UNO - a position that will put you far ahead of the competition when you're looking for that career opportunity a couple of years from now - then you may be the individual we're looking for.
- This is a paid position with an office in the Milo Bail Student Center.

Sound Good?
